Much That Was Given to the Church by Italy Is Involved.

SEIZURES SAID TO BE ILLEGAL

The most important news of the past week relating to the situation in France is contained in the Associated Press dispatch from Rome, which says that after a series of consultations with prominent Italian and French lawyers, well-versed in international law, it has been decided to establish in every diocese of France a special bureau managed by the most prominent legal authorities to be found, for the purpose of claiming for the church whatever properties the French Government shall have seized to which it was entitled under the common law of the country.

There are churches and seminaries, parochial residences and episcopal mansions, which have been turned over to the municipal authorities or have recently been declared the property of the State, which neither the State nor the municipal authorities had the least right to seize. Such is the case with all the church property seized by the French Government in the diocese of Nice and Savoy, which were made the absolute property of the church by special treaty when Italy ceded these two provinces to France.

Such is also the case with the former Papal residence in Avignon, over which the Vatican authorities never relinquished their rights of possession. The episcopal palace formerly occupied by Cardinal Lecot, the Archbishop of Bordeaux, was a gift to the church, and the same may be said of the many churches and cathedrals which have been built all over France by the faithful without a cent of contribution from either the municipalities or the State.

Because of this the Pope has been advised that there is still a chance to obtain a restitution of some of the seized property, as article ninth of the new law of separation explicitly allows such revindications before the courts or the Council of State. In Paris itself the legal bureau for the purpose has already been established in connection with the restoration of the property of the archdiocese, including the palace of the Nunciature and the former residence of Cardinal Richelieu in the Rue de Grenelle, now occupied by the Labor Ministry. M. Tadiere, Professor of International Law in the Catholic Institute of Paris, has been chosen at the suggestion of the Pope to direct the work, and it is probable that before long several law-suits will be started by the French prelates against the State authorities in order to obtain, if possible, the restitution of some of the property of the church.

RECENT DEATHS.

William and Mary Whalen, 2111 Rowan street, are mourning the loss of their infant son, Richard, whose soul passed into eternity last Sunday. The sympathy felt for the bereaved parents was attested by the many who attended the funeral Tuesday morning.

The funeral of John D. Broderick, aged thirty-eight years, a well-known dairyman, who died of typhoid fever at his home, 279 Campbell street, was held Sunday afternoon. The burial was in St. Louis cemetery. He was a brother of Patrolman Dave Broderick, of the police force.

The funeral of Henry Bode, whose death occurred Monday evening, took place Thursday from St. Paul's church, of which for years he had been a member. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bode, 423 East St. Catherine, and was a young man of sterling qualities and well liked among his wide circle of acquaintances.

The funeral of Michael McCabe took place Tuesday morning from the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Rev. Father O'Sullivan conducting the solemn obsequies. Deceased was well known in the East End and had a wide circle of friends who regret his death. For some time past he had made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Michael Crowe, 834 East Main street.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cissell, widow of the late William Cissell, died Wednesday evening at her home, 1714 West Madison street, leaving a wide circle of friends and acquaintances to mourn her death. She leaves one daughter who is a Sister of Loreto. The funeral took place Friday morning from the Sacred Heart church, Rev. Father Walsh officiating at the solemn requiem mass.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Clair, of 1029 West Main street was held Monday evening from St. Patrick's church, with interment in St. Louis cemetery. Mrs. Clair was sixty years old, and the widow of Thomas Clair, an L. & N. machinist. She is survived by a daughter, Miss Josie Clair, and two sons, John Clair, an employe at the canal locks, and William Clair, a coppersmith.

Deeply grieved were the friends of Mrs. Bridget Killen when they learned of her death on Wednesday, following an illness of grip. For many years she had lived on High avenue, and throughout the western section of the city she was well known and held in high esteem for her Christian and womanly character. Surviving her are two daughters, Mrs. Harry Smith and Miss Nellie Killen, and one son, John Killen. The funeral took place from St. Patrick's church yesterday morning with a solemn high mass of requiem for the repose of her soul.

Mrs. Anna Ryan, widow of John Ryan, who was for many years a well known and successful railroad contractor, died Friday morning at her home, 723 West Oak street, after a long illness of asthma, at the ripe age of sixty-five. Deceased was possessed of a character that endeared her to everybody, but she was best known for her kindness to her neighbors, whom she was always ready to assist in sickness and death. Mrs. Ryan is survived by only one daughter, Miss Mollie Dermody. Her funeral took place from the Dominican church Monday morning, the interment being in St. Louis cemetery.

Still Loyal.

On account of the street car strike the attendance was not very large at the meeting of Trinity Council on Tuesday evening, but those present were very much gratified to hear of the large returns made by Messrs. Zook and Ludwig, the collectors for the council, the amounts being the largest received by Trinity Council for dues at any one meeting in the past two years. This shows that many members are still loyal and speaks well for the council's future.
